

Case Study: St. Raphael Church Koloa, Hawaii

The reputation of Sauder Worship Seating® as a premier supplier of congregational seating has earned recognition among many Catholic dioceses including the historic St. Raphael Church in Koloa, Hawaii. The parish transitioned from flexible seating (chairs) to Sauder's custom-manufactured Radiance™ Curved Pews to best fit the wide profile of the church sanctuary and altar, following the architectural design of the space.

Sauder established a relationship with the Catholic Church in Hawaii years ago, forming the basis for being awarded St. Raphael's chapel renovation project in 2013. This project involved removing existing pews, refinishing floors, and installing Sauder Oaklok chairs for optimum flexibility in the limited space. At that time, plans to remodel the main sanctuary were in the exploratory stages. Their satisfaction with Sauder's service, product and performance in the chapel project ultimately led to Sauder being the chosen pew supplier for the upcoming project.

After thorough on-site review and discussion with church leaders and construction managers, the Sauder Worship Seating team assisted St. Raphael Church with the selection, design, transportation logistics and installation of the curved pews down to the smallest detail. The project moved from inception to completion in a matter of months! Additional Sauder chancel furnishing are also part of the remodeling plan to complete the project.
