

CASE STUDY Floor Layout Options

Sauder Worship Seating® offers a variety of products capable of satisfying any challenge that may be presented due to floor planning layouts. Whether the need is traditional straight pews, curved pews, auditorium seating or flexible chairs, this case study provides details in understanding how to solve your seating needs.

Flexible Chairs

Sauder Worship Seating offers a comprehensive line of flexible chairs. Providing the opportunity to create a variety of floor layouts while maintaining the ability to remove the chairs and use the same space for other purposes. This is a popular seating option if the overall space of the church is limited and other activities need to be held in the same room at different times throughout the week. All of our chairs have the ability to be interlocked together, which creates stability within the rows. A full line of accessories including book racks, card/pencil holders and kneelers are available for chairs.

Pews

Traditionally, pews have been the go-to seating option for worship spaces. That isn't necessarily the case any longer, but for congregations who want to continue the traditional feel of pews within their sanctuary, the floor layout is vital. The most common style is a straight pew layout. It is easy to achieve focus on the altar while keeping straight aisles. By creating various lengths of pews, this allows the aisles to flow through the sanctuary in a harmonious way. Mitered pews are another way to achieve a worship in-the-round feel but with a straight style of pew. Again, the pews are laid out in a way that directs attention to the altar. The final option for traditional pews is Radiance™ Curved Pews. The use of curved pews creates a feeling of warmth within the congregation as well as maintaining clear, continuous sight lines toward the altar.

Auditorium Seating

Auditorium style seating is an innovative way of creating an exciting experience for congregations. Sauder Worship Seating® has developed two auditorium seating options for a more contemporary style of worship – Clarity™ and Vista. The layouts presented on this page provide some insight into how the use of auditorium seating can update the look of a sanctuary. The size of the sanctuary can impact the location of where the seating is used. Including the main floor of a sanctuary or used only in the balcony. The layout located at right is a good example of using auditorium seating along with traditional pews. This can be beneficial when attention to transition areas on the floor need to be addressed and can be solved by utilizing a combination of seating options. Auditorium accessories include book racks, card/cup/pencil holders and drink holders.
